Subject's extra information

Study of the Christian art of Western Europe in the 11th, 12th and early 13th centuries, in the context of the new political, religious and cultural realities, the rebirth of cities and the religious reform. Through the main works of architecture, sculpture, painting, objects, books and furniture, the main novelties of Romanesque will be presented in their formal, structural and decorative diversity. The main theme of the course will be the Romanesque building, structure and space in which the different artistic manifestations were integrated, at the service of a function, the most important of which is the liturgy.

Learning objectives

- Know and develop the tools of the discipline for access to information and critical analysis of the History of Romanesque Art.
- Know the history of the Romanesque art.
- Know systematically the means, procedures, materials and techniques of artistic production in Romanesque Art.
- Know, discern and relate correctly artistic phenomena which have the same artistic-cultural bases.
- Understand the work of art and its specific environment, as a result of a patronage in the service of certain objectives and in a certain cultural context.
- Analyze the significant elements of a work of art and put it into context.
- Develop and handle basic concepts on iconography for the interpretation of images.
- Identify, distinguish and evaluate or assess the current problems of conservation, restoration criteria and management of historical, artistic and cultural heritage.
- Acquire a systematic and integrated knowledge of the artistic fact: different languages, procedures and techniques of artistic production throughout history, as well as aesthetic theory and thought.
- To develop a critical vision of the basic processes of scientific methodology in Art History.
- Develop instrumental skills applied to the History of Romanesque Art.

Competences

- Manage bibliographic references and handle search tools for general and specific bibliographic resources, including internet access.
- Plan and manage time in order to make decisions and carry out individual tasks and in team work environments.
- Develop a general diachronic vision of general and/or universal Art History.
- Critically recognise the spatial-temporal coordinates (diachrony and synchrony) and the geographical and cultural limits and interrelations of Art History.

- Identify and recognise the different regional and global diachronic visions of territorial artistic phenomena, as well as the relations between centre and periphery.
- Acquire adequate oral and written comprehension and expression.
