- To experience and understand the complexity of the profession: young children, professional competencies, the curriculum, classroom management, the centre's organisation, etc.
- To acquire the knowledge needed to carry out the teaching profession.

Competences

Competencies and indicators

The relation between theoretical – conceptual frameworks and practical experience: Compare and contrast observations and professional experience with the theoretical frameworks in education sciences as a reflection strategy to understand and explain reality, propose and implement improvements in performances.

- Relate and contrast the knowledge derived from experience with theoretical knowledge.
- Relate practical and theoretical aspects according to the concerns and needs generated by one's own profession.
- Build a personal vision based on the information obtained and the professional experience.
- Use the knowledge acquired in one's interpretation of reality.
- Analyse one's own practical performance from the perspective of competencies that need to be developed.
- Make well-founded suggestions for improving practical performance.

Team work: Act cooperatively with others as a strategy to carry out a project or various educational and/or social tasks that, due to their nature, could not be carried out individually. The aim is that the result obtained together should be more satisfactory than the one potentially achieved by working separately.

- Establish good interpersonal relations with the students and teachers in the work environment.
- Fulfil the commitments acquired within the team.
- Respect and value contributions made by members of the team.
- Make the group's work dynamic.

Expression and communication:

- Exchange information with others by using the official languages correctly and by mastering the communicative situation based on:
 - (1) knowledge of the context in which the conceptual and emotional information is transmitted;

SCHOOL PLACEMENT II 2020-21

- Use adequate vocabulary for the type of text one is writing.
- Master non-verbal strategies and be aware of the semiotic value of the personal aspect.
- Express oneself through multi-language resources and tools.

Show an initiative to make interventions in face-to-face activities. Information management: Search for, select, order, relate, assess/evaluate and use adequate information to perform the typical functions of the profession.

- Use various sources of information in the professional field.
- Quote information sources correctly in one's productions.
- Structure relevant information in relation to a topic of study.
- Analyse relevant information in relation to a topic of study.
- Evaluate relevant information in relation to a topic of study.
- Bring relevant arguments to support one's own ideas.
- Document one's discourse with data, evidence, quotations... from verified and trustworthy sources.

Problem solving: Careful consideration and treatment of situations that are considered difficult so that they stop being difficult or reduce their complexity.

- Detect a problem, identify it and describe it objectively.
- Analyse the situation to be solved by identifying the problem's main conditioning factors.
- Suggest different alternatives to solve a problem.
- Select one of the alternatives as the final solution by applying previously defined criteria.
- Solve the problem according to the alternative chosen.

Organising and planning educational performances:

- Design the line of action that is to be followed in order to achieve the objectives established, arranging and managing the necessary elements conveniently to carry out one or a series of tasks based on efficacy and efficiency criteria.
- Observe and analyse the educational reality as far as needs and opportunities are concerned.
- Know and use the cultural and scientific contents of the subjects.
