Subject's extra information

The recommendations are: regular attendance at classes, both theoretical and practical, the daily monitoring of the subject matter of repassos that described in each session of continuous consultation and recommended legislative materials, if necessary supplementary reading manuals of the subject, the conduct of the case studies common to consolidate and better understand the knowledge acquired in lectures. Finally, if in doubt, be used during the course of any of the hours of tutorials provided.

The course as part of the academic plan

The subject of private international law is given at the end of law studies due to its complexity. This is because, firstly, students receive highly specialized skills that are brand new and on the other hand, have to use much of the knowledge gained during the race. In particular, there are three disciplines, civil law, commercial law and litigation, continually emerging theoretical explanations and analysis of case studies. Since it is impossible to tell the teacher returns basics of these disciplines and others: constitutional law, international law, gives them for granted, which requires students to refresh their knowledge often already achieved in courses above. The complexity of the subject, which can be enjoyed from the first day, however, has its reward: the end of the course, students will have a much more complete picture of the legal system as a whole.
